Final Rejection

Claim Objections

1. Claim 4 is objected to because of the following informalities:

In claim 4, line 2; "leads a" should be changed to --leads, a--.

Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless -

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

2. Claims 2-4, 6, 7, 10-12, 17, and 18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Shin (US 2003/0086214).

Claims 17 and 18, Shin shows a damped flexible cable (FPC) for use in a magnetic memory device (Fig. 6C; [0048] to [0052]) including: an electrically conductive lead 47; a vibration damping material 40 disposed adjacent to the electrical lead; and an insulating material (adhesive) surrounding the vibration damping material and at least a portion of the electrical lead, wherein the vibration damping material is configured to be relatively wider/thicker in areas wherein more damping is requires and relatively narrower/thinner elsewhere (Fig. 4).

Claim 2, Shin further shows that the vibration damping material is completely enclosed within the insulation, and wherein end portions of the electrically conductive lead is inherently exposed for connecting the circuit.

Claim 3, Shin further shows that the vibration damping material 40 includes first and second layers disposed at opposite sides of the electrically conductive lead.

Claim 4, Shin further shows a plurality of electrically conductive leads, a portion of which are parallel to one another.

Claim 6, Shin further shows that the damping material covers an area at least  $1/3$  the area of the flexible cable.

Claim 7, Shin further shows that the damping material covers an area at least  $1/2$  the area of the flexible cable.

Claim 10, Shin shows a head suspension assembly in Fig. 4 for use in a magnetic recording device, including: a suspension 66, a magnetic transducer 65 connected with the suspension; and a flexible cable 41 electrically connected with the transducer, the flexible cable further comprising: an electrically conductive lead 47; a vibration damping material 40 disposed adjacent to the electrical lead; and an insulating material (adhesive) surrounding the vibration damping material and at least a portion of the electrical lead; wherein the vibration damping material is configured to be relatively wider in areas wherein more damping is required and relatively narrower elsewhere (Fig. 4).

Claim 11, Shin shows a magnetic hard disk drive, comprising: a housing; a magnetic disk rotationally mounted within the housing; a head suspension assembly pivotally mounted within the housing; an amplifier circuit; and a flexible cable electrically connected with the amplifier circuit, the flexible cable further comprising:

an electrically conductive lead; a vibration damping material disposed adjacent to the electrical lead; and an insulating material surrounding the vibration damping material and at least a portion of the electrical lead; wherein the vibration damping material is configured to be relatively wider in areas wherein more damping is required and relatively narrower elsewhere (Fig. 4).

Claim 12, Shin shows a flexible cable for use in a magnetic memory device, including: a first layer of electrically insulating material 45; a second layer of electrically insulating material 43; an electrical lead 47; and a vibration damping material 40; wherein the electrical lead and the vibration damping material are sandwiched between the first and second layer of electrically insulating material; wherein the vibration damping material is configured to be relatively wider in areas wherein more damping is required and relatively narrower elsewhere (Fig. 4).
